Guide to Successful Reentry into the Community

*"Act as though it is impossible to fail."

Reentry can be both exciting and frustrating! Your attitude toward release from prison is that it should be a simple matter of getting resettled, resuming routines, and reestablishing your relationships; but reality proves there is much more to it than that.

Here is a list of tips to consider that can help you go through the transition process:

- Change what is inside your head — reinvent and improve yourself.
- Set realistic goals and take necessary steps to achieve them.
- Don't rush it — have patience — one day at a time.
- Persevere — develop an attitude of not giving up.
- Find your own spirituality.
- Stay in a positive living situation.
- Carry yourself with dignity and respect — you will be more likely to be treated that way.

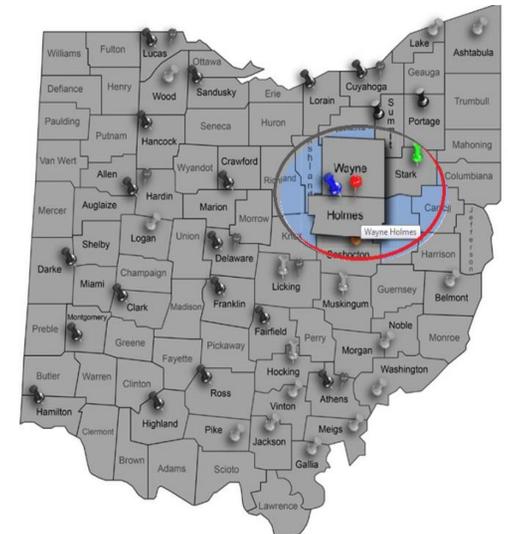

Seek support networks. Don't isolate yourself!

When you are released, take it one day at a time...
